Message: Why do we sing in Church?

Singing has deep roots in our faith. Almost every Christian community has, in one way or another, incorporated music into their worship. Our Scottish Presbyterian tradition used to be rooted in the singing of Psalms. Now we enjoy a wide range of Hymns that were passed down through the generations, each time being tweaked and reinterpreted, and we have new songs that find fresh and creative ways to express our faith. We sing together because it unites us as a community, allows us to express ourselves to God in ways that words alone would struggle to, and because some of the songs in our hymnbooks are simply beautiful pieces of art.
